ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The journey of this dissertation has been one of constant learning and exploration. I would like to express my sincere gratitude to everyone who was a part of this insightful experience. First and foremost, I would like to thank my guide Ms. Indu Toby for supporting, and encouraging me through the whole process. Her knowledge has been immensely helpful in putting this thesis together. I am extremely thankful to my Co-Guide, Dr. Shubha H.S., for inspiring me, and guiding me every step of the way.

I am immensely grateful to Dr. Sebastian Padickaparambil, Head of the Department of Clinical Psychology, at Manipal Academy of Higher Education, and all the other faculty members, for providing me with an opportunity to conduct this research.

I would like to thank my friends here in Manipal, for being a constant source of motivation. Your enthusiasm and drive helped me get through the minor setbacks I faced along the way.

Last but not the least, I would like to thank my family for being my pillar of support throughout. For always motivating me, keeping my spirits up, and pushing me towards doing my very best.
